

transmissions

knowledges and public spaces

November 22 - 23, 2018
Footscray, Melbourne

call for papers

Transmissions*—knowledges and public spaces

The Public Pedagogies Institute warmly invites proposals for papers/workshops around our conference theme Transmissions. We are interested in how ideas and practices are transmitted in the public sphere. What ideas currently have currency and what sort of public dialogue/practices/frustrations are occurring? How can we make interventions into the application of transmission itself that dominates learning discourses and is reductive and ultimately destructive to publicness—specifically the spaces where we share knowledge, build relationships and create change. This is also a conference that is about engaging what we know, practices that work and ideas that need greater uptake!

We welcome and invite a range of submissions – informal presentations, academic papers, workshops, screenings – and encourage a diversity of sectors to participate in two days of ideas-sharing and networking.

Submissions of no more than 300 words will be accepted up until September 30, 2018. All submissions should be accompanied by a 100 word biographical note. Please send to Karen.Charman@vu.edu.au

Keynote Speakers:

Jake Burdick, Assistant Professor of Curriculum Studies at Purdue University
Charlotte Courtois, Artist and founder of French association Konstelacio

Visit <http://www.publicpedagogies.org> for more details

PPI public pedagogies institute

